BOARD PARTICIPATES IN HOUR OF CODE

(BOISE). Matt Freeman, Executive Director of the Idaho State Board of Education, joined business leaders, elected officials, families, students and educators this week in participating in the Hour of Code, a part of national Computer Science Education Week.

“Hour of Code is a great opportunity to expose students to computer science,” said Freeman. “The national focus on computer science through Hour of Code hopefully will inspire young Idahoans to develop an interest in a very dynamic field of study.”

Earlier this week, other state and community leaders, including Idaho Governor C.L. “Butch” Otter, Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Sherri Ybarra and Boise School District Superintendent Don Coberly, showed their support by participating in Hour of Code.
