BACKGROUND/DISCUSSION

Following the soft closures of schools in the spring and the Board setting criteria for school districts and charter schools to resume in person instruction through the end of the 2019-2020 academic year, in April the Governor's K-12 Emergency Council asked that a working group be established to start planning for the fall and students' return to school. Two committees were formed: Public School Reopening Committee and Digital Divide Committee. Both committees convened in early June, and include Board members Critchfield, Clark and Liebich, legislators, Department of Education staff, school district and charter school administrators, operations staff, business and industry representatives and local health officials. President Critchfield chairs the Public Schools Reopening Committee. Board Secretary Liebich chairs the Digital Divide Committee. Due to the broad range of instructional and operational issues that needed to be covered, the committees then broke up into smaller groups that focused on each of these more specific areas and brought in additional subject matter experts to help with the more focused issues. The Public School Reopening Committee developed a framework for school districts and charter schools to use in planning for the 2020-2021 school year. This framework was established in a way that would help the schools plan in advance for operations based on three separate categories of disease transmission their local community might be experiencing at any one time. This advance planning would set expectations for students and parents as the situation within their community rapidly changed and allow for the schools to pivot from and between each level of operations quickly.

The Idaho Back to School Framework identifies expectations, guidelines, and best practices to support local governance and a successful 2020-2021 school year, delivering on Idaho's constitutional obligation for a free, uniform, and thorough public education system during these extraordinary times. This framework is provided to help school districts and charter schools to plan in advance for varying levels of transmission of the Coronavirus within their local communities so that they can continue to provide quality instruction to all students throughout the year and students can grow and progress through the education continuum.

The framework clarifies the school districts' and charter schools' responsibility for developing their response plan and providing continued instruction, and the local health districts' responsibility in informing the schools on the category or level of transmission in their local community and serving in an advisory role to the schools in the development of their plans. The Board approved the framework on July 9, 2020.

In addition to the work being done by the K-12 public school system to prepare for the 2020-2021 academic year, Idaho's public postsecondary institutions have been equally hard at work developing plans to provide quality instruction to our postsecondary students in safe and effective manner in the midst of budget reduction and anticipated changes in student enrollment. Each of the eight public institutions will provide an update on the percent of courses that are currently scheduled to offered in-person; protocols for residential living (as applicable to the institution); and their COVID-19 testing plans and capacity (either on-campus or in collaboration with local health providers). Like the K-12 public school system, the postsecondary institutions are developing and adapting plans as the situation evolves.

STAFF COMMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Recommendations and areas of consideration outlined within the framework are based on recommendations from federal and state resources, Idaho education stakeholders, and local and national best practices. Some school districts and charter schools will not be able to address or implement all the strategies outlined in the framework due to their local resources and building infrastructure; and circumstances may dictate that some districts alter strategies as the health situation in their area changes. The considerations identified in the framework are not a mandate on how any school must respond, but a resource to be used. The categories of transmission identified within the framework are those developed by the Department of Health and Welfare along with the local public health districts. This alignment allows for the local public health districts to identify the level of transmission in the community in which a school is located while the local board of trustees or charter school board of directors identifies how the school will respond. The public health authorities' guidance that identifies these categories can be found here: https://www.idahopublichealth.com/district2/coronavirus/7-23-20%20H%26WDefining%20Levels%20of%20Community%20Spread%20for%20Idaho%20Schools\_FINAL\_V2.pdf

Local education agencies are responsible for providing instruction and other related educational services to all students during these difficult times, and they will need to use a variety of strategies to ensure all students have access to consistent learning opportunities, including students receiving special education services. In order to meet this responsibility, it is anticipated schools will need to use a blended learning approach to education as schools move up or down through the categories of community transmission or confirmed cases are identified within a school building. To meet these responsibilities, school districts and public charter schools are in the process of planning or implementing and adjusting plans that help them to meet their responsibilities for providing instruction to all students during the 2020-2021 academic year in a safe and healthy learning environment and a safe work environment for staff. Parents and guardians can expect their local public schools to provide a quality education that meets the state's minimum standards and prepares the students for their next level of education or to move into the workforce.

As the situations in a given community rapidly change, schools will be forced to adapt and update their plans to meet those changing conditions. The information provided today is based on the compilation of school district and charter school plans that were available over the past two weeks. While every effort is being made to keep this information updated, there may be some instances where a local board of trustees has met and adjusted their current planned mode of instruction or start date.

Range Planned Start Date:

- Region 1 – 08/27/20 through 09/09/20
- Region 2 – 08/24/20 through 09/14/20
- Region 3 – 08/10/20 through 09/08/20
- Region 4 – 08/17/20 through 09/08/20
- Region 5 – 08/12/20 through 08/31/20
- Region 6 – 08/17/20 through 09/08/20

Category of Risk (majority of counties reported):

- Region 1 – Category 2 - Yellow
- Region 2 – North Central Health - Currently Not Publicly Reported
- Region 3 – Category 3 - Red
- Region 4 – Category 2 - Yellow
- Region 5 – Category 1 - Green
- Region 6 – Category 2 - Yellow

Mode of Instruction (majority of school districts and charter schools reporting)

- Region 1 – Split between in-person and blended instruction
- Region 2 – In-person
- Region 3 – In-person
- Region 4 – In-person
- Region 5 – In-person
- Region 6 – Split between in-person and blended instruction

School districts and charter schools are listed based on the modality of instruction provided to the majority of their students. A school may be listed as on-line while still serving students receiving special education services or at-risk students in person in small groups or one-on-one while physically distancing. Schools indicating they are in-person four days a week and on-line one day a week are reported as in-person. Some school districts and charter schools are currently reported as in-person pending local Board action. All schools listed as providing in-person instruction are providing instruction with physical distancing and enhanced cleaning protocol.

Working with the Governor's Office, staff are working to develop a dashboard that can be updated weekly that will provide the Board a sense of what is happening in Idaho schools around the state. Due to the frequency of the changes in the more populated areas will only be able to give a snap shot in time of what is happening in a given week.
