

K-20 Work Group Top Three Barriers to Going On

- Too many Idaho students and parents don't see the value of education beyond high school.
- Too many students find applying for education beyond high school intimidating and confusing. In many cases, they are not aware of the financial aid available. What can counselors do to help demystify the application process? They should show students the connection between education beyond high school and a job in today's workforce. This is especially critical for first generation students going on beyond high school.
- Too many students require remediation in math and English. With 60% go-on rate as the goal, what should be done to improve mastery in these subjects?
