STUDENT MENTAL HEALTH SUMMIT IS TODAY

The State Board of Education's Idaho Student Mental Health Summit starts today at 4 p.m. (MST).

Idaho Public Television will carry the Summit live via livestream at:
<https://www.idahoptv.org/shows/idahoinsession/>

Or at: <https://youtu.be/KkoTFSYpDAo>

The 90 minute Summit will open with remarks from Idaho Governor Brad Little and will feature a keynote address by Alison Malmon, founder and CEO of Active Minds, the nation's leading nonprofit organization promoting health awareness and education for young adults.

The Summit will also feature video messages prepared by student leaders both in high school and college and a panel discussion facilitated by Board President Debbie Critchfield. Panelists include:

- Chris Manley, president-elect, Idaho School Counselor Association
- Mike Munger, program manager, Idaho Office of School Safety & Security
- Dr. Rick Pongratz, director of Counseling and Testing, Idaho State University

- Maegan Rides At The Door, director of the National Native Children's Trauma Center, University of Montana
- Dr. Eric Studebaker, director of Student Engagement & Safety Coordination, Idaho State Department of Education
- Carol Vanhoozer, counseling services coordinator, College of Southern Idaho
